Accra #1 team prepares for Ghana

Think back to one year ago when Maryland was socked with snow. While the snow was still knee deep in March, I found myself hoping that Mercia Laryea's flight would arrive from Ghana in the midst of fresh falling snow. I was not disappointed. Big fluffy flakes started to fall as I drove Mercia from BWI to my house, her home while she stayed in Maryland. Mercia had never seen snow or frozen water before. She had only a lightweight jacket and one sweater borrowed from a well traveled friend. Of course, she had no boots. Several well placed phone calls and a trip that evening to the St. James, Lothian Ultreya resulted in a snowball fight, snow angels and an entire new wardrobe of loaned winter clothes for Mercia everything from boots and a down storm coat to long johns. For the next two months, she wore at least three layers of clothes every day!

Mercia, MD Cursillo weekend # , came to Maryland for two months last year to shadow the MD # Cursillo team and weekend to prepare her for being the first lay leader of Cursillo in the diocese of Accra. After returning to Ghana, Mercia began forming a 4th day community with other Ghanaian Anglicans with Cursillo or Emmaus experience. Mercia is also forming a small team that will join with a team of Maryland Cursillistas now committed to go to Ghana this coming August . Yes, it is finally happening. God willing, Accra # will take place August this year! There will also be an Ultreya and a Fourth Day Workshop the following weekend. Most of the Maryland team hopes to explore Accra during the unscheduled days before participating in the Fourth Day events.

A Secretariat committee prayerfully considered all the applications for the Ghana export and selected the rector, two spiritual advisors, and the music director for the Maryland portion of the team. Several weeks later just before Christmas, the committee, along with the four newly named team members, completed the selection of the team. Others who applied desire to support the team however they can. In all, thirteen people accepted the call to be a part of the export team. This group will gather for the first time at the end of January. Team members will not be given specific assignments until a later date. Team formation will be unlike any team formation we have had. It will be like putting a puzzle together with half the pieces on the opposite side of the ocean from the others. Marylanders or Ghanaians will be give rollos based on cultural considerations. Once we are all in Ghana, the two parts of the team will join to become one community for a dry run of the weekend during the three days before the actual Cursillo begins.

While the Secretariat and the Servant Community have pledged to support the export expenses including airfare to the extent possible, team members have agreed to do their part in raising funds for costs not fully covered and by paying personally for passports etc. This is a community effort involving all of the Cursillo community both here and in Ghana. So, hear this . . . We need all of you to get out there and raise money for support sell those cookbooks, have garage sales, bake sales etc. It is a long way to Ghana! Jeanne Cushing, the recent past lay director of Maryland Episcopal Cursillo, not only persisted in efforts to make this export possible, but also because of her professional work assignments in Ghana this past year and for the months coming up, is able to coordinate "non content" details. She has visited Trinity College, the site for the weekend in Accra, brought us pictures and is working on airfares. Having an official coordinator as our conduit between the two continents is a blessing.

Accra # could be a transforming experience for many, many people. Initially we are going on faith and are full of questions. How much Cursillo "stuff" do we want to take to Ghana in our suitcases? What will we wear in the Tropical August heat? What rollos will the Ghanaians give? Will the Maryland table leaders understand what the Ghanaian tablemates are saying or meaning? What will a Ghanaian agape look like? What will we eat? Who will cook the meals? We are being sent into a culture unfamiliar to us and we will surely learn more than we give. This is world mission it is about your sending us and about us being sent beyond our familiar environments to share with our Anglican

COME TO THE RIVER!

Praise God We have already had such an exciting response to the announcement that our first annual Maryland Cursillo retreat will be taking place in October. People want to come, people want to help, and we are thankful for each and every one!! So, the formal registration form is included with this Abrazo. To register, you must fill out the registration and return it per the instructions with a check for the deposit. Unlike many of our local restaurants, there is no call ahead seating although we'd certainly like to be able to accommodate everyone.

The space will be limited, so to be fair to all, registrations will be accepted on a first come, first serve basis, and once the spaces are filled, there will be a waiting list. Once again, we thank all of you, and thank God for your interest and support.

Fourth Day in Accra

On December 1st, the nascent Cursillo community in Accra met for their first Fourth Day Workshop. It was held at the Anglican Retreat Center about 15 minutes from downtown Accra. About 20 Anglicans who made a Walk to Emmaus or a Cursillo here in MD or elsewhere, and one young man who made Chrysallis earlier this year rented a van to get to the center. The other participants had their own transport. It was a grand day with lots of singing with tambourine accompaniment. We started the day with “This is the day that the Lord has made” and finished our workshop with a Eucharist celebrated by Fr. Harry Orlando Mensah, who made his Cursillo here in MD a few years ago.

The first Accra, Ghana Cursillo weekend will be held at Trinity College in Lagon, Ghana, about 30 minutes from central Accra. A sure sign of God’s blessings on this export was the appearance of a mother hen and her baby chicks near the out building where the Cursillo community will be doing their own cooking! The facility is a lovely spot with plenty of room to walk and lots of shade trees. The dining room even has its own resident dog! Please keep our friends in the Accra Cursillo community in your prayers. ♥

A Statement on Cursillo

David Rowe, NECC President

Note: The following appeared in the December 2003 issue of "The 4th Day Magazine".

The decisions reached at the recent General Convention in Minneapolis have caused some division in the Episcopal Church. Some dioceses, congregations, and individuals are curtailing giving to the national church; some people have resigned their ministries and leadership positions. Some have left the church; others are likely to follow, though how many no one knows. With this happening, it would be irresponsible of us as stewards of the Cursillo movement not to deal with possibilities.

As we discuss where we are and what the future might hold, the following realities impress themselves upon the NECC.

Regardless of permutations in institutions, Cursillo has always kept its eyes firmly focused on Jesus and on the Mission. One of the principles of the Cursillo movement is that:

We focus on Christ and His resurrection power in our lives, transforming us into the people He would have us be. Theological and political issues have no part of our agenda.

This movement is neither liberal nor conservative. It is Christ-centered and Christ-focused. We must keep this in mind and heart as we do what responsibility calls us to do in considering future possibilities and possible adjustments to them.

The policy of the NEC/NECC is that it will not be a political or social agenda organization. It is a movement of the Episcopal Church. The NECC should not attempt to understand the implications of the as yet uncertain organizational and financial transformations in the ECUSA. There are many issues that we do not influence.

What is clear is that NEC was created to serve the Episcopal Church in the United States, and we are licensed by the Roman Catholic Church to do that. Despite our personal theological and political views, we are focused on knowing Christ and making him known to others. That is our call and in doing it lies our greatest joy. Ultreya! Ultreya!!

Let's get on with the day's apostolic action.

Let's all pray for the church, the Church, and one another every day.

David Rowe

Gifts of the Spirit—Still Around

I would like to take this opportunity to thank all of the community for their support and patronage over the last nine years. That is how long I brought Gifts of the Spirit for Cursillistas to purchase note cards and other palanca and gifts at Ultreyas and 4th Day workshops. It didn't really seem that long.

The time has come and I have given up the reins to this ministry and a new owner will now be bringing the Journal to Cursillo functions. As of January, 2004, Marjie Mack is the new owner and proprietor of Gifts of the Spirit. Please continue to give her the support and patronage you have given me, and JoAnne before me. Don't forget to call her when you need that special palanca or Decolores item.

Again, thank you and Ultreya!

Cindy Parks♥

Collect for 4th Day Community Gatherings by Fr. Rick Larabee

O Gracious God, whose power working in us can do infinitely more than we can ask or imagine, look with favor on all those gathering around the world in Cursillo, Happening, Chrysalis, Walk to Emmaus, Via de Cristo, Kairos, and other such movements. Grant both the leaders and candidates such wisdom, power, humility and grace that day by day they would more nearly follow Your Way, more clearly see Your Truth, and more dearly love the Life You give through Jesus Christ our Lord. Amen.
